Program Information

This one-day workshop will provide basic instruction and training on how to plant trees successfully. The workshop will include classroom instruction on proper planting techniques and specification fundamentals, and an outdoor demonstration of selecting planting sites, inspecting nursery stock, planting, and post care techniques.

Instructors

Ryan Rodefer earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Urban Forestry from the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and began his career with Wachtel Tree Science, Inc. in 2010. Ryan has earned his ISA CTSP certification and now leads Wachtel's Safety Program. Ryan is involved with the Wisconsin Arborist Association seasonal conferences providing training and speaking engagements. Ryan has recently accepted an adjunct professor teaching positing with Gateway Technical College.

Mary Pederson earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Environmental Science with a Minor in Forest Management from the University of Minnesota-Twin Cities and began her career with Wachtel in 2016. She has worked in all aspects of tree care including planting, pruning, removals, plant health care and tree inventory. She also provides assistance with public tree inventories and the creation of urban forest management plans and Emerald Ash Borer Response Plans.

Ryan and Mary share a passion for trees, especially integrating a scientific approach to arboriculture and urban forestry to better serve clients, communities, and trees alike. They have combined their respective professional backgrounds and exceptional communication skills to provide audiences with captivating and educational tree talks, and are excited to bring this experience to your community!

Who Should Attend

Community public works and parks employees, tree board members, managers, and others who have responsibility for or are involved in community tree planting.
